PRICE, THREE CENTS

WOE, PLUS GRIEF, HIT LOWER MERION

Maroon Drops League Game
to Norristown Fire,
32-30.

LANDSOWNE WINS, 26-19

For the first time this season Coach Anderson's flying five from Lower Merion lost two game in a row during the past week. The first of these two reverses hurt considerably, for it was a game with Norristown High School their greatest basketball rivals, and in addition a league contest which Lower Merion could scarce afford to drop at this stage of the race. The second game was lost to Lansdowne High School, at Lansdowne, 26 to 19.

The Norristown jinx continued to function against Lower Merion last Friday night at the Junior High gymnasium and Norristown again won by a close margin, 32 to 30. Captain Kohlhas and his teammates out-scored Norristown from the field 26 points to 24, but Norristown got more chances from the foul line than the former and made them count. It seemed that the boys from the neighboring borough could not miss and every time they took a stab at the basket, in went the ball. They only got four set shots at the basket during the game, the rest were over their heads, under their arms, through their legs and any way they could turn the ball loose, but the goals counted just the same.

Lower Merion played the sort of game that would win nine out of ten ball games, but Norristown was not to lose. Lockwood scored 16 points and played a good floor game.

Plan Public Hearing for Zoning Dispute

Notice of a public hearing, to be held by the Board of Adjustment of the Borough of Narberth upon the appeal of J. Baird Caldwell to erect a gasoline filling station at 844 Montgomery avenue, is published elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Caldwell applied for a permit from the Superintendent of Public Works George B. Suplee on February 5 and was refused on the ground that such a business establishment as he proposed to erect would be in violation of the Zoning Ordinance of the Borough.

Mr. Caldwell then made appeal to the Board of Adjustment and that body has set Wednesday, February 27, as the date for a public hearing. The hearing, which interested property owners are invited to attend, will take place at Elm Hall, at 8 P. M.

The property in question is situated at the corner of Montgomery and Iona avenues. The appeal is based on the fact that the surrounding section is already used for business purposes and the use of this particular location for such purposes would not be detrimental to the interests of that part of the community.

Behind Mr. Caldwell's property is the Montgomery Garage, which, however, was erected before the borough's zoning ordinance went into effect. Across Montgomery avenue are several gas stations and other business establishments, that territory being part of Lower Merion township and hence not affected by the borough's zoning regulations.

To Hold Luncheon

A luncheon will be held by the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday, February 21, at 1 o'clock at the church. Business meeting and program will follow. Members are requested to bring their mite boxes to this meeting at which a large attendance is desired.

To Speak at Stamp Club

The Harry S. New stamp club announces that Warren Glose will speak at the club's meeting this evening. Mr. Glose will talk on foreign stamps and will also have some to sell. Meetings of the stamp club are held every Friday evening at the Presbyterian Church at 7.30. All boys and visitors are welcome.

Famous "Lost" Lincoln Painting Acquired By Newman F. McGirr, Ardmore Collector

Some time ago art connoisseurs of America were intrigued by the announcement that a hitherto unknown portrait of Abraham Lincoln had been discovered and restored.

Everywhere lovers of fine paintings expressed a desire to view the work, which, according to a number of critics, was painted during the lifetime of the Great Emancipator and which plainly bore evidence that he actually sat before the artist while he reproduced his striking likeness on canvas.

However, few were given an opportunity to inspect the "Lost" Portrait, as it was appropriately termed, and within a comparatively short time it had again been outwardly lost to the world of art.

Now the portrait bobs up again, right here on the Main Line. It has been acquired by Newman F. McGirr, 28 West Montgomery avenue, Ardmore collector of rare books and objects of art. The widely-discussed canvas is now hanging in his galleries, where it may be inspected.

Discovery and restoration of the work is credited to Baruch M. Feldman, young Philadelphia painter. He found it hanging in an old hotel and although it was in a deplorable condition, he immediately saw that it might endure restoration.

Exhibitors Wanted for Better Home Week

The "Better Homes in America" Committee, headed by Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, announces that the exhibit to be held at the Community Building during the week of April 21 may be participated in by any resident of the borough. This makes local business men eligible to exhibit articles of home furnishings, etc., but on the condition that no names or prices be displayed. Any interested are requested to call the chairman, L. B. Edgerton.

Any resident is also invited to place on exhibit reconditioned furniture in competition for a prize. Information of those interested will be given on the north side by Mrs. Robert Dot-hard, Narberth 2448; Mrs. Charles Carson, Narberth 4122-J, and on the south side by Mrs. John A. Caldwell, Narberth 3987; and by Mrs. F. W. Rogers, 106 Woodside avenue.

The card party to be given at Elm Hall on Thursday, February 28, at 1 o'clock, will be the chief revenue raiser for the "week." Luncheon will be served at 1. Tickets may be procured from Miss Runyon, Narberth 3778-R. The card party committee will meet at 208 Essex avenue, Thursday, February 22, at 2 P. M., to complete final arrangements.

A joint meeting of all committees will be held at the Community Building on Thursday, February 28, at 8 P. M.

TAILORS CELEBRATE FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Brookline Square Club Scene of Banquet by Main Line Association.

The first annual banquet of the Main Line Tailors and Cleaners' Association was held last Thursday night at the Brookline Square Club, attended by members of the Association which reaches from Overbrook to Berwyn.

Guests of honor at the affair included Harry C. Bare, of Ardmore; W. Russell Green, of Narberth; Judge Eugene V. Alessandroni, of Bryn Mawr, and H. Joseph Harrison, of Bryn Mawr. Mr. Bare acted as toastmaster, and President Max Simon welcomed the members and guests.

Mr. Green spoke briefly on the romance of business. "It doesn't matter what you do so much as how you do it," the Narberth attorney said. "Putting one's heart into a job and really loving it will yield big returns, monetary and otherwise. A man who loves his job will find out innumerable interesting things about it which a man who was merely indifferent would never notice. Being interested in one's job is one of the best symptoms there is that a man is on the right track. It not only means greater financial success, which of course is important, but it means a vital interest in life. The man most to be pitied is he who has no vital interests."

Co-operation was stressed by the other speakers as the keynote to success in modern business. "In union there is strength" is just as applicable to business today as it was to the thirteen colonies during the Revolution was pointed out.

Club Women to Hear Dr. Rufus Jones Speak

The monthly calendars of the Women's Community Club for the past year show many outstanding programs. It seems, however, that the next meeting, on Tuesday, February 19, excels them all, for Dr. Rufus Jones, of Haverford College, one of America's greatest educators, will be the speaker.

Dr. Jones is a world traveler, a philanthropist of note, a lecturer who has spoken before audiences all over the United States and in many foreign countries. He is also considered by scholars as one of the foremost living authorities on mysticism. "An epoch of adventure" will be the subject of his talk. Whatever Dr. Jones may have to say on this subject his audience will take away with them a message that they will long remember. Members may bring guests, and "Elm Hall" will be the meeting place.

It is hoped that the members will bring to this meeting some of their treasures, old shawls, china glass, pewter, brass or old quilts, anything of beauty and value, to make this exhibit a delight to the eyes of all. Every woman loves the things left to her from the women of her past generations, so this afternoon let us share our joy of possession with our friends.

The auction bridge given by the executive board at the clubroom on February 12 was as usual well attended and the proceeds will go toward decorations and furnishings for the platform in the clubroom. Do not forget the Inter-State Institute at the New Century Club, Philadelphia, February 27. Three State presidents and other noted speakers will be there to help club women solve their problems.

Religious Education.

Owen C. Brown, Chairman of the Religious Education Committee of the American Baptist Publication Society will be the speaker at the Baptist Church of the Evangel on Sunday evening. He will outline the problems of religious education and the part the church school plays. It will be an open house meeting with a social evening following. A cordial invitation is extended to members of other churches to attend.

Festive Senior Dance at Lower Merion High Draws Two Hundred of School Set

The Senior dance at Lower Merion High School drew over 200 members of the school set to the Junior High last Saturday night. This was a valentine dance with decorations of red and white with cupid and hearts making the room most attractive. The programs also were in the shape of hearts. The patrons and patronesses for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pennypacker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roach, Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Cocklin, Dr. and Mrs. Bertrand K. Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Helveston, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Keever, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Elmore, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mead, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Gimber, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hopkins and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vallette.

TO DISCONTINUE EXTRA COLLECTION

Borough to Suspend Special Service to Merchants
by April.

DISCUSS ESSEX TUNNEL

For various reasons the special collection of rubbish from the retail stores along Haverford avenue will be suspended at the conclusion of the regular winter schedule which will be some time in April. This was brought out in a recommendation of the Highway and Sewer Committee of Council adopted at the February meeting of the Borough governing body on Monday night.

The subject of the Essex avenue tunnel came up for discussion at the meeting, and, according to the Burgess, is being advocated by two groups of citizens. More popular support will be needed before council will take any steps in the matter. However, if put through at all this year, it was pointed out that it would have to be financed by a bond issue since there is no way such a project could be paid for out of tax money. Council would have to be petitioned at the May or June meeting to put the matter up for a referendum at the primaries in August. The borough's share in such a project would not be less than one-third; an unofficial estimate a few years ago placed the cost at $100,000.

The recommendation of the Highway Committee and the reasons for the discontinuance of the special collection are given in the report which follows:

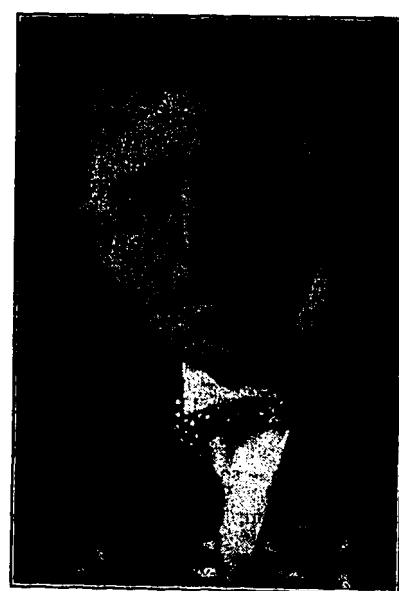

"We recommend that at the conclusion of the present winter schedule of ash and rubbish collection, there should be a permanent suspension of the policy of collecting rubbish from all retail stores. This policy was adopted experimentally last year because of reports which had been received from the Fire Chief and the Burgess with reference to the accumulation of rubbish in and about local retail establishments. It was stated that these accumulations produced fire and health hazards.

"Practical experience in making these collections has demonstrated that the volume of rubbish is so great as to require more time and labor than can be fairly appropriated for that purpose. The character of the rubbish, being unlike that which is normally collected from residences, is arousing complaints from the custodian of the Lower Merion Township dump, thereby threatening our continued use of that dump. We have also received many complaints and protests from individual citizens and tax payers who earnestly believe that it is not a proper expenditure of public funds to render such an exceptional service to business houses. If this recommendation is approved by Council, it would be our intention by the publication of this report in the local newspaper and by means of individual notices to notify all store proprietors well in advance of the discontinuance of this service.

Favor Extended Recreation Facilities

At an informal meeting held on Tuesday evening at the home of Kenneth L. M. Pray to meet Charles E. English, secretary of the Philadelphia Playground Association, the following resolution was passed:

"Be it resolved that we, Citizens and Parents of Narberth being interested in providing for our Children's healthful and constructive recreation, respectfully and earnestly request that the Recreation Board take active steps at once to prepare a plan for the more effective use of the Community Playground and other recreation facilities of the Borough.

"Be it further resolved that we support the Board's application for such reasonable appropriations from Borough Council and the School Board as may be necessary to carry into effect the plan finally approved."

The organizations represented were: Boy and Girl Scouts, Churches, Council, Recreation Board, Women's Community Club, Mother's Council and School Board.

ORCHESTRA GIVES SECOND CONCERT

Pleasing Program Offered by Main Line Amateur Players.

SOPRANO IS SOLOIST

The Main Line Orchestra, under the baton of Adolph Vogel, gave the second concert of the current season in the auditorium of the Junior High School building, in Ardmore, Wednesday night. A group of well-known concert numbers was offered by the 50 amateur players making up the orchestra. Tille Barmach, soprano, was soloist.

A distinguished addition was made to the orchestra's repertoire in the large movement of Dvorak's New World Symphony, a number which probably offered more technical difficulties than any previously given. The reading was marked by excellent phrasing and tempo. The occasional spots of faulty intonation or ragged attack did not mar the total effect of a most pleasing performance.

Miss Barmach chose as her number accompanied by orchestra the Air de Lia from "The Prodigal Son" of Debussy. Her well-rounded voice, of mezzo-soprano quality, blended well with the orchestra. As solo numbers, with piano accompaniment, she sang "O That It Were So," by Bridge; "In the Luxembourg Gardens," by Manning, and Two Songs of Little Russia, arranged by Zimbalist. She sang "Love's in My Heart," by Woodman, as an encore.

The string portion of the orchestra opened the second section of the program with Tchaikowsky's Andante Cantabile. Other numbers on the program were the "Pique Dame," Overture of Von Suppe, the Intermezzo from "Naila," by Delibes; the prelude to "Kunihild," by Cyril Kistler, and La Danse from "Scenes Napolitaines," by Massenet. The latter number, which concluded the concert, was played with the full spirit and brilliancy which it calls for.

A uniformly large attendance has testified to the steady improvement in the work of the orchestra. The result of six years' of ensemble playing, which was so noticeable in the last concert, was carried forward into this second program.

Medical Society Hears Experts on Diseases

Disease carriers are greater menaces than the quarters occupied by patients, in most infectious cases. Epidemics may better be prevented by examinations to ascertain that patients and persons caring for them are free from bacilli before they are discharged from quarantine, rather than by fumigation following termination of illness. These are the opinions of Dr. John A. Kolmer, of Cynwyd, professor of Pathology and Bacteriology of the Graduate School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Kolmer, who addressed an open meeting of the Main Line Branch of the Montgomery County Medical Society, at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, on Monday evening, was largely supported in his assertions by Dr. Theodore Appel, State Secretary of Health, who preceded him as speaker.

The meeting, called partly at the suggestion of the Lower Merion Board of Health, was held to take up the topic of contagion control. The Main Line Branch and the Lower Merion Board of Health were largely represented and there were also present representatives from many schools, colleges and social agencies in this section and from the Board of Health of Haverford, Radnor and Upper Darby townships.

To Hear Peruvian Missionary.

The annual thank-offering service of the Woman's Foreign Missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held on Sunday, February 17, at 11 A. M. Miss K. Mamie Donahue, missionary from Lima, Peru, will deliver the address.

This Paper Adopts (Classified) Lineage System; Aids Users

Effective with the business issues dated March 1, the papers published by the Livingston Publishing Company will adopt a new basis for the charging of classified ads.

All advertisements for the "want ad" section of the paper will be charged by the line instead of by the word. In this we will be in accord with modern practice, and with the system used by all daily newspapers.

The present rate of two cents per word will become 10 cents per line, with an average of a little over five words to a line to be used in figuring space. A distinct saving will be offered in a new rate of 25 cents per line for the same ad in all three papers.

A minimum charge of 35 cents will be made for ads in one paper, and 75 cents for an ad run in all three. It will be possible, under the new rates, to publish a four-line advertisement in all the papers, reaching some 20,000 people, for the small charge of $1.

"Lost" Lincoln Finds Its Way to Ardmore

He bought the prize immediately and carried it to his studio, where a careful examination convinced him that it was the work of an American artist, particularly so because it measured 25 by 30 inches, a size characteristic only in America. Despite careful research, however, that is as near as he ever came to the identity of the painter and who were the previous owners of the "lost" portrait.

He backed it with fresh canvas and reinforced the frame and then undertook to clean it. In this task he succeeded and when the retouching was finished the portrait was as clear as it has been the day the original painter finished it. Yet it still bore a mellowness, a mark left by the half century which has passed over it.

The portrait is of the head and bust of the Great Statesman and the head is turned three-quarters from the viewer. That the portrait was not done before Lincoln became President is testified by the fact that he is shown wearing a beard, which he did not have until 1861.

The hair and beard are very dark, virtually black, and more luxurious than shown in any other known painting of the President. The sombre darkness of his coat is set off the crimson upholstery of the chair on which he is seated. The watch fob, simply a black ribbon, is regarded by some observers as a clue which might afford evidence of the date of the work.

Not Copy of Portrait.
The suggestion that the portrait might have been painted from a photograph is branded ridiculous by artists who have been close enough to the picture to study it carefully. It is entirely free from traces of inanimate presentation, which would surely stand out if the portrait was a copy, it is held.

The general lines of design, the natural contours in shadow, the intimate characterization and the pervading melancholy of the eyes immediately convince those who look upon the canvas that it is a reproduction made by an artist inspired by the actual presence of Abraham Lincoln.

LOSE TWO GAMES

Franklin Kohlhas outdid himself and played the best game of any boy on the floor that night. He scored nine points, but it was his fine floor work during the first half and his fighting spirit that kept his teammates together. Lower Merion Subs defeated Norristown Subs, 23 to 21.

The Lansdowne victory was a clean-cut affair. Although the score was close right down to the final minutes, Lower Merion seemed unable to make their shots go in the basket. Thomas, Segal, Sherwood and Mandes had 15 or more shots apiece at the basket which would dance the tango on the rim and topple over backward for a Lansdowne man to intercept. The boys from Lower Merion seemed unable to fathom the problem presented by the glass backstops in Lansdowne's fine new gymnasium, and the ball would always be going at the wrong angle for them. Lockwood, Mandes, Segal and Thomas did the scoring for Lower Merion. This game evens the series between the two teams for the season, the maroon winning from them at Ardmore earlier in the season.

Lower Merion is still leading the league with five victories and two defeats, with Upper Darby close behind them with four victories and the same number of reverses. The maroon team goes to Abington tonight to play the Abington High School team in a return game. They won from Abington earlier in the season at Ardmore by one point.

Ardmore Man Recalls Thrills of Job During 45 Years' Railroad Service

The remarkable progress and development of transportation by rail within the last two decades was impressively pictured this week by Clayton E. Wiker, 108 Sibley avenue, Ardmore, in describing some of his experiences and observations during 45 years of service on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. Wiker, now in his seventieth year, but looking 15 years younger, was honorably retired by the company on February 1, with a faithful record as a railroad carpenter.

The Main Line of the Pennsylvania Railroad consisted of two tracks and they were frequently blocked by innumerable breakdowns caused by the imperfect equipment of the age when Mr. Wiker entered the employ of the company on October 4, 1884.

The "powerful" locomotive of the day was a comparatively light engine, not much larger than the present-day shifter, equipped with two-driver wheels on each side and drawing a 15-ton capacity tender. A locomotive that could move with 25 cars coupled behind it was considered in the super-class then.

In contrast to the ordinary observer who measures railroad progress by the tremendous improvements made for comfort and speed, the veteran railroader sees the establishment of reliability and the elimination of danger for the railroad employees as notable achievements.

Hazards Deceased.

Hot boxes, flat wheels and other minor railroad jinxes, at one time a constant source of delay, virtually have been eliminated by the use of highly perfected materials and by advanced engineering methods, he pointed out, and now passengers never need fear that they will not reach their destination on time, without annoyance or anxiety.

Referring to the elimination of hazards for railroad workers, he pointed out that thirty years ago it was a common sight to see fellow-employees minus fingers or otherwise incapacitated, but perfection of foolproof devices and equipment and constant safety campaigns have made serious accidents comparatively rare on the railroads. As an example of a hazard, he mentioned the old link and pin coupler, which took a toll of many fingers and hands. This has been replaced by an improved device which carries no menace for the safety of the employees.

Nature frequently causes trouble for railroaders, and Mr. Wiker, like all other veterans of the roads, had several memorable experiences battling with the elements to re-establish transportation.

Recalls Johnstown Flood

"At the time of the Johnstown Flood in 1889, which played havoc with all railroad lines in Central Pennsylvania, I, like hundreds of other railroad men, was called to join the emergency crews dispatched to repair the damage caused by the mad waters," he began.

"We left Philadelphia immediately after the dam had burst, but were delayed several days en route until the waters of the Susquehanna receded from the tracks of the main line, which then was considerably lower than it now is. We first went to Dewart, near Lock Haven, where a railroad bridge had been washed away by a minor flood caused by the same rains which brought on the Johnstown dam break. I saw the first train pass over the repaired bridge a week after the flood.

"Next we went to South Fork, near Johnstown, where another span had to be rebuilt. It was hazardous work, as the water was still high, but instructions were to go ahead at full speed, as transportation had to be resumed at all cost. Working twenty-four hours a day we repaired the bridge in a week and the line was reopened after being closed fourteen days.

Helped Clear Main Line

"After the blizzard of 1888 I worked almost continuously for four days shoveling snow with an emergency crew sent out to help clear the main line. I was summoned for snow-shoveling duty several other times, once helping to dig out a passenger train drifted into a cut near Mountville, Lancaster county.

"I had an interesting but none too pleasant experience in 1904, when sent to Steelton, near Harrisburg, to help keep debris from lodging on the tracks of the main line, which was under several feet of flood water from the Susquehanna, on one of its periodical sprees. We put on boots and patrolled the submerged tracks, dislodging logs, stumps and other driftwood which might have remained on the tracks, blocking the line, when the water subsided."

Because of hard times in 1893 many of the railroad employees were permitted to work only three days a week, he recalled, adding that a condition of that sort would never happen today. During the panic of 1907 he was paid with script, which, he said, could be converted into real money only if one was fortunate or had a friend in the right position.

Mr. Wiker saw a number of serious railroad wrecks, particularly remembering a freight crash in Ardmore in 1910. All four tracks were blocked by the smash-up, he said.

Mr. Wiker had two serious accidents during his forty-five years with the Pennsylvania Railroad. On November 13, 1886, he fell seventy-two feet into the Schuylkill River from a scaffold on the Arsenal bridge at Arsenal. Although he suffered no broken bones he was confined for two weeks in a hospital and then for six weeks at home.

Less than a year ago he experienced a second fall, plunging from a railroad tower at Fortieth street, Philadelphia.

He suffered several broken ribs, slight internal injuries and a deep laceration on his knee. He was disabled by this mishap for two weeks.

Mr. Wiker, a staunch Republican, cast his first Presidential vote for James A. Garfield in 1880, thereafter voting for every Republican Presidential candidate, including Herbert Hoover.

Mr. Wiker was born in Lancaster county on September 2, 1839. He entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad on October 4, 1884.

He is active in Masonic circles and has been treasurer of Ascension Commandery, Knights Templar, of Ardmore, since the formation of the body in 1925. He is a Past High Priest of Chapter No. 262, and has been a representative to the Grand Chapter for more than fifteen years.

Mr. Wiker moved to Ardmore twenty-three years ago from Philadelphia, and has lived here ever since at 108 Sibley avenue. He is married and is the father of four sons and two daughters.

Journalist to Lecture

Carleton Beals, young journalist, who has seen history in the making in Mexico and South America during the last ten years, will deliver a series of five public lectures on "Latin-America Today," on consecutive Monday afternoons at 3.45 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., 1421 Arch street, Philadelphia, beginning February 25. Further information regarding the lectures may be obtained from the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, 1525 Locust street, which is sponsoring the series as its annual course in current events.

Found Not Guilty

A jury last week at Norristown found John Dickie, of Narberth, not guilty of violating the prohibition enforcement laws, although the defendant admitted that he had liquor in his possession. Dickie testified that he bought two gallons of corn liquor, found by Lower Merion police at his home, as medicine for his aged mother and himself.

Judge Williams declined to accept the plea of guilty under the circumstances and ordered Dickie placed on trial. The jury decided in favor of the defendant.

Concert at Bryn Mawr

Artist students of the Curtis Institute of Music will give a concert at Bryn Mawr College on Monday evening. The Institute, which was established four years ago by Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, daughter of Cyrus H. K. Curtis and wife of Edward W. Bok, of Merion, lists on its faculty such well-known musicians as Josef Hofmann, Mme. Marcella Sembrich, Professor Leopold Auer, Efrem Zimbalist, Felix Salmond and Louis Bailly.

Recitals at Girard

Harry C. Banks, Jr., of Wynnewood, opened a series of organ recitals at Girard College on Sunday afternoon. He will give other recitals at the college on February 24 and March 10 and 24. He was assisted Sunday by Mrs. Mae Elby Hotz, soprano.

Magazine Subscriptions Increased at Library

Since the Narberth Library has extended its services, and has arranged that it shall be opened continuously from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening, many persons have taken advantage of the reading facilities which the Library affords, and have lingered to browse among the magazines as well as among the books.

Foreseeing that this condition might arise, the library has increased—in fact nearly doubled—the number of its magazine subscriptions, depending upon outside contributions (a rather uncertain source at its very best) for only two of them. These two are the weekly magazines, The Nation and that colorful magazine of New York life, called The New Yorker. These two magazines are valuable, but not indispensable, and while there is considerable interest in them, the library did not feel justified in adding them to its permanent list.

Magazines are circulated also just as books are with this one restriction, that the current numbers are reserved for use in the library. The list of magazines to which the library has subscribed for the current year is as follows:

Children's Department:
Child Life, John Martin's, Popular Science Monthly, St. Nicholas, American Girl.
Adult Department:
House Beautiful, Literary Digest, Woman's Journal, Bookman, Living Age, Review of Reviews,

The Old Main Line

The following historical sketch, which will be printed serially, was written by Margaret B. Harvey, and originally published in a volume issued by the Historical Society of Montgomery County in 1895. Entitled "Something About Lower Merion," it traces the history of the township from its beginnings to the 1890's with many delightful digressions.

INSTALLMENT III.

The hills of the west bank mimicked mountains in their abrupt rise, in their disordered masses of mighty rocks, flung by nature's hand in wild confusion. The deep ravines cleaving these hills suggested cruel scars, long healed, and now made health-giving in their clear streams, singing gayly as they leaped to the river in myriads of fairy cascades. One of these ravines, later known as Mill Creek ravine, and now known as Rose Glen, rivaled the larger Schuylkill in its embracing, majestic hills, its towering, dense, blue-shadowed woods, and its sparkling, laughing waters. The narrower ravine, with its smaller stream, at Soapstone quarry, was perhaps even more impressive in the majesty of its perpendicular heights. But, as the hills of the Schuylkill approached what we know as Conshohocken, they seemed to mimic mountains; they became mountains in reality, failing only to reach the clouds. But mountains they became, in that they joined the spur from the valley hills, proving their relationship to the Appalachians as the Indians called them, the "never-ending chain." These grand hills of Conshohocken not only establish their relationship to the Appalachians, they proudly point to their relatives' image in the air; for, if today, from the summit of the noblest of these can be discerned the distant spires of the Quaker City, if from it the townships of Springfield, Whitemarsh, Plymouth, Norriton, Lower and Upper Merion are spread out at the feet of the beholder like a map, no less can be described the far-off sapphire peaks of the "never-ending" Blue ridge. The early white man had crossed the ocean to behold this sublime spectacle, but, alas! many residents of Lower Merion in our time think it scarcely worth while to imitate so good an example; the sublime spectacle is too near home.

Probably the early white man explored these ravines, tracing the creeks to their sources upon the "Bryn Mawr" or "high hill" region, if one region of hills can be called higher than another where all are high hills. He found these creeks Schuylkills in miniature, rapid rivulets, enclosed by wood, clothed heights, every turn in their course displaying a new picture of charming beauty. The high hill region he found to consist of majestic sweeps of flower-dotted fields broken into velvety billows, each sweep and billow framed in by the same noble forests of beeches and chestnuts, oaks and tulip poplars, with undergrowth of blossoming shrubs, laurels and azaleas, vacciniums and dogwoods, as characterized the borders of the Schuylkill. But when he passed the high hill region he discovered that he had crossed the water shed, dividing the tributaries of the Schuylkill from those of the Delaware. The branches of Cobb, Indian and smaller creeks, with their wildly romantic fringes of anemone-starred woods, violet-varied meadows, moss-grown rocks, and tinkling falls, were as beautiful after their own kind as the gorge-sheltered affluents of the Schuylkill. Thus was Lower Merion, from river to rivulet, from mountain to knoll, from glen to mead, from tree to flower, the very perfection of loveliness, a true paradise of earthly beauty. And so it is today.

And, if we wandered in fancy, like swift-winged birds, over the whole township, will you also, in fancy, again sit with me upon the broad window-seat of the dormer, in the low garret, under the sloping, shingled roof? If so, I pray you, glance out with me again. It is only a green field upon the left of us which I want to show you, a very little higher than the one in front of us, a part of the yellow patch upon the map. But that green field, a portion of the property of the late Jonathan Clark, was determined by the United States coast survey to be the highest point of land within twenty miles of Philadelphia. If you stood out in that field you could command an extensive view. You could see Mount Holly in New Jersey, and Roxborough and Point Breeze in Pennsylvania. And that reminds me; as Edward Harvey was the first to introduce the alanthus into Lower Merion, so also was Jonathan Clark the first to introduce the mulberry, he being among the earliest in the neighborhood of Philadelphia to attempt silks culture.

We don't often see a little old-fashioned, horse-hair-covered trunk in these days, but here is one in this old garret. This served all the fair daughters of the family in years past during their sojourn at the famous Friends' Boarding School at West Town. Well do I remember how often I gazed at that trunk in the garret, and wondered why it was that I could never take it to West Town. But I was only a degenerate scion of the old stock, for my father had married "out of meeting." Edward Harvey had taken Margaret Boyle by the hand, in the quaint little edifice near the General Wayne tavern, years before, consequently their sons and daughters were welcomed at West Town; but no Quaker record bore the names of Margaret Boyle's grandchildren. Still, if Margaret did marry "in meeting," she must have been rather gay for a Quaker maiden. Her miniature, as a young girl, shows her in a short-waisted puffed muslin dress of quite a worldly pattern; her hair arranged in veritable bangs, surmounted by a muslin turban, fastened above the forehead with a cameo brooch. Beautiful she must have been; her dark hair and eyes, and pink-and-white complexion abundantly prove this.

Comparison at the Motor Shows is Showing the Country that the new Nash "400" is the only car of all the new cars that offers all these important features as standard equipment.. at no extra cost

THE new Nash "400" not only gives you all the important 1929 refinements listed above, but gives them to you without one single cent of extra cost. All motor cars have two prices—the factory
(f. o. b.) price, and the delivered price. If the delivered price includes the extras, charged for at retail prices, you'll find your car costing a lot more than you anticipate.

Some dealers (not Nash dealers) charge as much as $50 or $60 for bumpers alone. On the new Nash

"400" you'll find every necessary accessory... hydraulic shock absorbers... bumpers, front and rear... even tire locks... installed at the factory... included in the factory price... at no extra cost.
That means a very much lower price, delivered, fully equipped.
The Nash "400" leads the world in motor car value!
